A.N.E. Merges With U.S.C.E.

350 Dealers Make New Exchange Largest In Nation

THE United States Coin Exchange announced this week that it has completed negotiations with the American Numismatic Exchange to purchase all dealer contracts currently serviced by A.N.E. The new combined exchange, to be run under the name of U.S.C.E., will continue to operate out of Detroit, due to its more central location.

While the merger came as a surprise to the coin community, the economics of the situation have long required that some realignment take place among the country's teletype services. Both U.S.C.E. and A.N.E. came to life at about the same time and for their first six months, which coincided with the gigantic price increases of mid-1963, business was quite good.

However, in the early months of 1964, three other teletype networks came into being and began bidding against each other for every new coin dealer who became big enough to aspire to a system membership. Also, due to delays in billing and installation, many marginal dealers and investors would change memberships on a bimonthly basis, leaving behind them a trail of past due billings. Exchanges were torn between setting up credit requirements for new members which would guarantee quick payers on the circuits but cut potential membership to the bone, or opening the doors to anyone who wanted on, which would guarantee a large membership including a large number of marginals.

Possibly, at this juncture, we might briefly go into the economics of teletype operation. Billings to a coin exchange from a wire service, either American Tel and Tel or Western Union, are on a basis of sending and receiving units in use plus line charges based on airline mileage between dealers in a particular geographic area. For example, on the American Numismatic Exchange, there were, at one time, eight circuits. One served the upper east coast; one the southeast; one the central and so forth. The strange and overriding factor in budgeting was that line cost from Houston to New York, for instance, was the same whether there were two dealers on the circuit or 25. Therefore, for efficient operation, the managers of the exchange had to shift constantly the circuitry in order to place as many dealers as possible on as short a circuit as possible.

Given this situation, it is obvious that the worst time period for an exchange is at the very start when there are large line costs and few dealers aboard. Conversely, after a breakeven point is reached, the more dealers you can place on a circuit with room for expansion, without incurring additional line cost, the higher the potential return.

As everyone now knows, the coin market, particularly the roll and proof investor portion of the market which makes the largest use of teletype facilities, is now in a depressed state. Many dealers and investors who made money by buying and selling and then buying again on the rising market or are now being squeezed out of business by their lack of ability to execute short sales in the declining market. It is possible that the near future will see some sort of provision for short sales with protection for the buyer, but at the present time no such plan is in sight. So for the dealer that depends on a large flow of business, the times are hard indeed.

With many of the marginals and even some of the larger dealers leaving the various exchanges, two avenues are open for their managers: first, change the alignment to serve a smaller geographic area or second, to join forces with another exchange which is in parallel and eliminate the double line cost. The first alternative is unpopular with dealers as it does not give them the necessary exposure. The second is that chosen by U.S.C.E. and A.N.E.

Many will remember the difficulty that several large exchanges experienced with the old tape contention system. People would sometimes wait for hours to get a message in. The maximum number of dealers effectively handled was around 120. With the new exchange, in order to handle over 300 dealers in a satisfactory fashion a new concept in teletype communications has been designed.

The new equipment, called the "Dual System" doubles the capacity of exchange wires to handle dealer buying and selling activities; and doubles the number of dealers that can efficiently be served by one network. The members of the expanded exchange will use a single model 28 ASR

Automatic Teletype Machine, which performs the functions of sending and receiving simultaneously. This new equipment doubles the capacity of the system by providing 60 minutes per hour sending time — and 60 minutes per hour receiving time. The simultaneous sending and receiving feature also means that relays are not interrupted by outgoing messages. Thus messages are received by all stations at approximately the same time, keeping the market current even during busiest trading hours.

U.S.C.E. President Ray I. Pevos outlined the advantages of the new setup: "The Dual System eliminates many of the problems which have arisen with the expansion of coin dealer teletype service. With the new arrangement, there will be no waiting to get on the line, no line contention and no message interference. Dealer messages are sent at maximum speed by punched tape. And once the dealer places his message tape in the machine, he is free to attend other matters in his shop. The Dual System has an automatic polling device which polls every station in turn, and will pick up and send all messages awaiting transmission.

The consolidation of U.S.C.E. and A.N.E. members into one trading exchange and the concurrent installation of the new Dual System is expected to have profound effect on numismatic market activity. No other system now operating will be able to equal the capacity of the new U.S.C.E. setup. The tremendous purchasing and selling resources of the projected 350 member exchange provide coin dealers with a unique opportunity for expanding business volume and servicing the wants of their customers.

According to Pevos, who announced the acquisition, "Our expansion of U.S.C.E. reflects faith in the numismatic market. The management and members of the United States Coin Exchange firmly believe that teletype will play a role of increasing importance in the coin business. The combined U.S.C.E. and A.N.E. membership will define the nation's major numismatic market."

Pevos indicated that "the new Dual System allows the exchange to expand even further by accepting new memberships from dealers in most geographical areas. Membership applications and enquiries are now being accepted at exchange headquarters: 1068 Penobscot Building, Detroit, Michigan, 48226."

What Is Happening In The Roll Market?

Recent Performance Accentuates Buyers Selectivity

C. F. Verbeke

TO many coin investors a glance at the market averages for uncirculated rolls can hardly inspire real optimism.

This attitude, unfortunately characteristic of many participants in the coin market, lacks considerable insight, however.

How real are the ills or assumed ills of the roll market? Is recent price weakness indicative of overall market conditions or is a more selective buying public entering the market? These questions broadly cover what has happened in recent months.

From an overall viewpoint, the situation is far from alarming, although the latter should be viewed with cautious optimism.

In theory, by the exception of Lincoln cents, the declines registered in all other denominations can be considered technical corrections in a major market advance, composed of secondary up and down cycles.

This concept, accepted by stock market and commodities market traders, is not yet firmly implanted in coin investors' minds. The market for uncirculated rolls and its unweathered characteristics is the largest single factor for coin investor discomfort; this attitude, right or wrong, is further emphasized by the coin market's lack of a true public image.

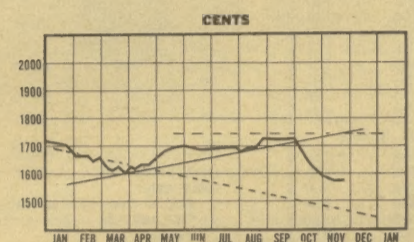

Indeed, some ten teletype circuits now function in the United States and Canada; some of these institutions have made remarkable efforts to bring their activities to the public's attention, some emerge as private clubs functioning solely for the members' benefit without consideration for the public interest.

The situation is further complicated by the mushrooming of coin dealers associations, all equally sincere in their efforts of policing the coin business, but marked by their inability to merge into one large and powerful association capable of pursuing a common goal with the public interest first in mind.

Most individual teletype coin exchanges have now self-regulated and well policed operations although this fact is not sufficiently brought to the public's attention; in failing to do so, a part of the benefits of self regulation is lost because it fails to stimulate the prospective coin investor's imagination.

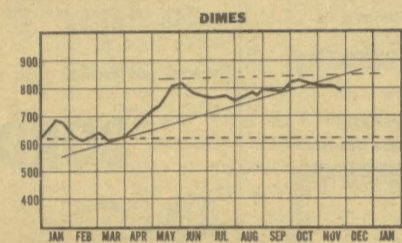

It is widely held that public confidence in the stock market, its exchange and institutions, can be attributed to the widely publicized efforts by the securities industry to offer a favorable and confidence inspiring public image.

These efforts were accomplished through self regulation, periodical house cleaning, but above all by an astute Madison Avenue campaign — it should be added that financial resources were never an object and this can not be said of the coin market and its institutions.

Asides of this subject however, the only question remains: Is the coin market basically sound? Obviously the market has experienced considerable difficulties on the modern and domestic front. The classical and foreign coin market have thus far not felt any adverse reactions, the latter being virtually in its infancy.

Hardest hit of course have been the modern roll issues; paradoxical as it may seem, these issues were hitherto considered as the most promising group for future appreciation. As yet nothing disproves this assumption, however. The mere realization that steep price advances invariably do correct and are followed by temporary declines should prove of some solace to worried coin market participants.

An individual review of modern roll issues by group can shed some light on the future outlook however. The Space City averages, compiled and charted for a period of one year, can provide some basis for measurement of advances or declines. The method of technical analysis, sometimes used successfully in stock market or commodities market analysis, can be applied to price performance of coins. It should be stressed that the method is purely experimental, subjective in nature, and reflects solely the views of this writer. Furthermore, a major element is lacking in the coin market: volume figures, and if applicable, open or short interest data. These elements are often used in conjunction with price data when analyzing stock market or commodities markets.

Essentially three measurements can be derived from plotted coin price averages: a) A general trend line headed up or down; if a trend line is broken, this indicates a reversal in trend at least temporarily. Trend lines become more valid as the duration of the data plotted increases. A one-year trend can be considered fairly reliable.

b) A major support area line, usually drawn under the lowest prices or sometimes over a series of old highs just preceding a major price advance. Support can also be found roughly at the 50 percent level between the highest and lowest price; these lines are subjective and approximate however.

c) An overhead resistance line, drawn through successive tops or alongside a temporary down trend line. In general, the level indicated by overhead resistance, if successfully passed, marks the beginning of a renewed uptrend.

Based on these graphical approximations, the following conclusions can be drawn for each denomination.

Lincoln Cents

In October, this market broke decisively an uptrend line which began last March. The old support level around 1600 (see chart 1) offered little resistance to the serious sell-off which took place. At this venue, this market appears oversold; should the price decline carry into the 1500 level, it appears likely that sufficient buyers' enthusiasm could be generated to warrant immediate higher prices. It may take the Lincoln cent market a full year however to completely recover its losses. A price advance over the 1725 level would indicate substantially higher prices.

Jefferson Nickels

Market performance proved erratic since the major price advance culminated in June. The sharp price break which occurred beginning October has all but retraced 50 percent of the overall price advance begun in early Spring. Short of unforeseen events, the nickel market should consolidate around current levels. Likely, further price declines could be stemmed at the 2600 level (see chart 2) if they occurred. Strong incentives are needed, however, to move this market into new highs. An advance over the 3100 level could set the stage for substantial price increases.

Roosevelt Dimes

This market failed to make substantial new highs at mid-October when it exceeded its previous May-June highs. This can be attributed to the prevailing weakness in cents and nickels at the time. The major uptrend begun in March has been slightly violated by the recent price decline, but is not necessarily significant. In fact, nothing suggests that the uptrend has positively reversed. With the omnipresent possibility of a debased silver United

Market

(Continued from Page 3) States coinage, pronounced weakness is unlikely in dimes. In this instance, the emphasis is on numismatic value rather than intrinsic considerations. The dime market could conceivably hover around the present 800 level for some time (see chart 3) a break-out over the 850 level would be indicative of a major price advance, however.

Washington Quarters

This market has staged a spectacular price advance since mid-April, before it ran into resistance at the 1050 level. The present price decline is merely a correction which could conceivably carry to the 950 level. (See chart 4). The uptrend of this market remains intact, a break-out over the 1050 level could carry this market into new highs. Very likely the ultimate direction of this market should be decided by January.

Franklin Half Dollars

The highs established by this market in May-June were never exceeded, although approximated beginning October. Had it not been for general weakness in the coin market during that period, half dollars might well have moved into new high grounds. The uptrend has reversed in this market, although good support is likely at the current 2300 level (see chart 5), a serious overhead problem lies ahead. A price advance over the 2500 level could carry to substantially higher price levels. Previous difficulties encountered at the 2500 level, however, suggest the necessity for new and strong market incentives. Again, a debased coinage could bring the much-needed incentives.

Morgan Dollars

The price trend of this market reversed rather brutally at mid-June and since has declined steadily. In spite of this price decline, the sell-off has been of orderly proportions and does not suggest distress selling. At its present price level 3375-

3400 (see chart 6), the Morgan dollar market has roughly retraced 50 percent of its advance. Further weakness suggests a retreat to the 3000 level. A break-out over the 3600 level could be the signal for a mild advance al-

AIR-TITE MINT SET HOLDERS

AIR-TITE Mint Set Holders are made of heavy, high quality, polished, clear vinyl plastic,  $3\frac{1}{2}'' \times 5\frac{1}{2}''$ , about the same overall size as U. S. or Canadian Proof Sets.

* SIX — Individually connected compartments in each holder.

* VERSATILE — Use to house mint sets of 2 to 6 coins; cut away pockets not needed.

* FAST — Insert and seal coins, in seconds, virtually airtight. No hot irons or special tools required for sealing.

* COST — Much less than high priced plastic holders and still giving top protection.

* COMPACT — Store two or three times as many sets, in a given area, than bulky plastics.

* APPEARANCE — Coins in these holders present a better appearance because they are clear, neat and trim.

$3 Billion Rescues Britain's Pound

Debased Australian Coinage Causes Hoarding

By: Christian F. Verbeke

THE latest in a series of international monetary rescue operations is the United States participation in a $3 billion Western countries pool destined to give Britain's pound sterling a much needed shot in the arm.

The operation was quietly performed over the long Thanksgiving holiday. The seriousness of Britain's monetary situation was covered in PACE No. 42 of November 28 in the editorial by Christian Verbeke relating European silver purchases as a hedge against possible devaluation of the pound sterling.

In essence this is what happened: Since the Labor Party victory in England last fall, considerable selling pressure was felt on the pound sterling resulting from the drastic economic measures announced by the Wilson administration, i.e. higher tariffs, higher taxes, and nationalization of industries, etc. Heaviest sales against the pound sterling originated in European financial centers.

By Friday, November 20th, downward pressures on the pound increased and the situation was serious enough for Britain to boost the bankrate to 7 percent from 5 percent on Monday, November 23.

Not only was the bankrate boost considered an insufficient measure but it failed to rally and confidence in Wilson's government here and abroad. Renewed pressure on the pound sterling resulted. By last Tuesday the pound took another dive after the U. S. Federal Reserve System boosted the discount rate to 4% from 3½%. The U. S. move was essentially defensive in nature and expected in the face of the British bankrate boost.

It is reported, Britain used $50 million to support the pound on Friday, November 20th; by Tuesday, to avert immediate catastrophe, another $100 million were laid out. Britain's reserves, which total $2.5 billion, could obviously not withstand very long the pressures, and drastic action was needed.

On Wednesday, November 25, the day before Thanksgiving, the U. S. Treasury and the Fed announced the U. S. determination to give Britain a $3 billion line of credit with the help of ten other western nations for the express purpose of rescuing the pound sterling of devaluation.

Devaluation of the pound sterling would have meant a reduction in price in terms of other currencies. Since most free world currencies are in some way or directly related to the sterling standard in turn interwoven with the dollar standard, a chain reaction could have set in, seriously damaging many international monetary systems.

Financial catastrophe was thus narrowly averted by the United States and western intervention in Britain's shaky finances. It took the enormous financial resources of eleven nations and a staggering $3 billion to stem the selling tide of the pound by European speculators, the same interests which have been buying U. S. silver by speculative purposes.

The move gives Britain ample time to review its economic and monetary policies, it is unlikely that the Free World could once again come to Britain's rescue should that country demonstrate its inability to secure confidence in the pound sterling by its allies and trading partners.

The move is an expensive one for the United States, the exact size of its participation in the $3 billion kitty is unknown but is likely to be high. At any rate, Britain's monetary distress results in double jeopardy for the United States: on one hand it forces this country to inject U. S. dollars in a foreign monetary system in an obvious effort to protect the U. S. dollar position in the world; on the other hand, a precious and important metal, United States Treasury silver, is routed into export channels to serve foreign speculative interests, the same sources which raided the pound sterling and used silver as a hedge against possible devaluation of the pound. A classical case of double jeopardy indeed! Only it involves 200 million Americans.

Australian Coin Hoarding

The introduction of a totally base coinage in Australia is causing an accelerated movement of hoarding pre 1964 coinage according to dispatches received from Sidney, Australia:

The Australian Government's plans to introduce a decimal currency system in February, 1966, are being hampered by hoarding.

Tucked away in socks, tins, piggy-banks, drawers and under mattresses are many of the 800 million pennies.

So many are out of circulation that the mints at Melbourne and Perth are still producing pennies to meet public needs, though the deadline for their scheduled switch to production of the new coins has long since passed.

The decimal currency will replace the current pounds, shillings and pence. Mints will produce 1-cent, 2-cent, 5-cent, 10-cent, 20-cent and 50-cent pieces.

Appeals Fail

Despite appeals from the Federal Treasurer, Harold E. Holt, and other Treasury, Mint and banking officials, Australians are stubbornly refusing to put their pennies back into circulation.

Production this year would exceed 80 million because of increased demand, compared with 37 million in 1963.

One reason for the shortage was the conversion of pay phones this year. Instead of four pennies, they now take a single six-pence piece. This means that millions of pennies are no longer being circulated by phone users.

Perhaps the most potent cause of the pinch is that many people are trying to get complete sets of Australian pennies from early in the 20th century through early this year.

Mr. Holt said many erroneously believed that when the conversion to decimal currency came, they could exchange each penny for a new cent, equal in value to 1.2 pennies.

The only exchange, he said, will be six pennies for five cents or multiples of that rate.

Romance of Gold

Fortunately for coin collectors, economists and precious metals users there is always new literary talent drawn to the arduous but fascinating subject of gold. In the days where the pocket book and its shallow productions is king, it requires courage to write a scholarly or documentary book on an exclusive subject bound not to sell more than a few thousand copies.

Two such works have just been released and offer in their own respective ways the documentary and scholarly approaches to the subject: GOLD.

One book aptly called GOLD! by Gina Allen is essentially historical, sentimental and most of all documentary. While not entirely overlooked, gold economics are given the light treatment. The book bounds in anecdotal material however, and some 75 gold stories are presented. The 275 page fact-filled book is available for $5.75 from Thomas Y. Crowell Co., New York.

A scholarly and technical approach is used in GOLD: Recovery, Properties and Applications, edited by Edmund M. Wise. The book is technically oriented but written in a style which makes attractive and interesting reading for businessmen, economists and laymen. For research organizations, academic institutions and reference libraries the book is an absolute must.

The author has drawn thought-provoking conclusions about the current gold situation when he states: "with no increase in the price of gold and continued depreciation of the dollar . . . gold mining in the U. S. will soon be terminated . . ." A competent book, attractively written, such is GOLD by Edmund M. Wise, 367 pages available for $12.00 from D. Van Nostrand Co., Inc.

Exodus Medal Presented

ACAPULCO, MEXICO — On the occasion of the 30th anniversary of the arrival of the first illegal immigrants in Palestine, the Israel Charge d'Affaires in Mexico Mr. M. W. Loyal presented a silver "Exodus" medal to author Leon Uris at his home in Acapulco, Mexico. Uris was awarded the medal in recognition of the understanding he fostered through his best-selling novel of the same name.

The "Exodus" medal, officially known as the "30th Anniversary of First Immigrant Runners State Medal" was designed by Y. Pughatch and David Shenav, both of Jerusalem, who themselves entered Palestine as illegal immigrants from Europe.

On the obverse is an immigrant ship plowing into a barbed wire fence on the Sharon coast and the passage from Deuteronomy 1:41 "You dared to go up . . ." The reverse shows a map of the Mediterranean Basin and the routes followed by the SS Exodus and other immigrant ships on their way to the Promised Land.

This medal is now available in bronze and silver from the Israel Government Coins & Medals Corporation, Ltd. which recently opened offices at 850 Third Avenue, New York City. Proceeds of the sale of this and other medals struck by the Corporation in Jerusalem are earmarked for the landscaping, restoration and preservation of historical sites in Israel.

Bowers on World Coins

Q. David Bowers

In recent weeks there has been much interest in Canadian prooflike sets. Most of this interest has been riveted to the 1965 issues which have not yet been released. About the only tangible things changing hands so far are order forms for 1965 sets. Several Canadian dealers are doing a lively trade by selling these by the thousands to their counterparts in America!

With 1964 Canadian prooflike sets now wholesaling at $7.50 to $8.00 each it is no wonder that many are interested in next year's coinage. The newly imposed limitation of five sets per order has whetted appetites even further. One more factor is the United States proof coin situation; as it is anticipated that no United States proof sets will be issued during 1965, many collectors who formerly purchased United States sets are now turning to Canadian sets. Be all this as it may one can look for a tremendous interest in Canadian prooflike sets of 1965, especially during the first part of the year when the number in collectors' and dealers' hands will be limited.

Any Pace readers desiring order forms may write to: Coins Uncirculated, Post Office Box 470, Ottawa 2, Ontario, Canada. This order form notes that one set may be ordered for $4.00 Canadian funds; three sets for $12.00 or five sets for $20.00.

1958 Canadian prooflike sets have been especially active with one dealer predicting that they will hit $100.00 per set in the near future. Also of interest are the 1958 Canadian dollars in uncirculated condition which are now selling for $5.00 to $6.00 each.

The 1956 Colombia peso is one of the world's most popular 20th century crowns. Issued in 1956 this piece commemorates the 200th anniversary of the Bogota Mint. Inflation, an every day situation in certain South American countries, was on the rampage in 1956. This peso rose in intrinsic value above its face value shortly after it was minted. This resulted in the hasty recall of all specimens which had been released... leaving an estimated 11,000 pieces as the net coinage escaping the melting pot. One year ago this coin could be purchased in the $10.00 to $15.00 range. Today the price is more nearly $40.00. The end does not though considerable overhead resistance exists at the 3700 mark.

Peace Dollars

The unabated advance in this market begun in February reversed at mid-September much to the dismay of this market's enthusiasts. The correction is a minor one, considering the steep price advance which took place. In fact, should this market retreat to the 2000 level (see chart 7), it may well gather from there the momentum needed to exceed its old highs. The full impact and realization of the Peace dollar market potential is yet to come. It should coincide with the release of the newly minted 1964 silver dollars. The announced 45,000,000 pieces issue is ample to satisfy collector's demand which in fact should not exceed a few millions. Once released, collectors will fully realize that the Peace dollar series can be updated and completed and as such is far from being a dead issue. A price advance over the 2300 level could carry this market into new high grounds.

Proof Sets

Inevitably the news of U. S. proof set discontinuation has somewhat cooled public enthusiasm for this market. Nonetheless, an early resumption of proof coinage, in say 1966, is very likely. Prices have receded to the long term uptrend line established since January (see chart 8). The market is presently situated in a major support (500 level) area and has shown definite signs of improvement. An advance over the 600 level should be the basis for a sustained price advance.

Conclusion

The global view of the domestic roll market is thus rather favorable. Unquestionably recent price declines will continue to test the strength of the coin buying public, and moreover constitute the first lesson in market psychology for the articulate advocates of the fallacious philosophy: "the coin market can only go up," unfortunately so often overheard.

Coinage legislation and United States silver policies should remain the most important factors directly affecting the coin market; from that standpoint, the outlook appears excellent, as any move involving silver content would enhance the numismatic value of 1964 and prior coinage.

CANADA

SILVER

DOLLARS-

Still remain the King of Canadian coinage and with the exception of a few dates, prices continue to rise due to the ever increasing demands of the collector and the fact that there just are not enough to go around. There are no huge hoards available and certainly no group has enough of any one date to materially effect the market.

This definitely places the Canadian silver dollar in the NON-SPECULATIVE class and in one of sound Numismatic Value. Look at the low mintages, scarcity, demand, prices paid; then decide for yourself.

MANY THANKS

To all of you who ordered from my last ad: I was gratified at the response, and delighted to see the interest in Lincoln Cents. Because of the many requests for prices on Circulated Rolls, I took an inventory and am offering them here. Where I have a line it doesn't necessarily mean I don't have any, just that I don't feel I have enough to advertise. Drop me a line for firm prices. Remember for Lincoln Singles at fair prices, my ad on page 13 of the Nov. 28th issue is still good. All the Circulated Lincoln Rolls listed here I have in quantity, and offer immediate delivery. At this writing I have filled 100% of all orders with NO refunds. I offer moneyback guarantee, I pay all postage, insurance, and any necessary charges, and I welcome ALL orders, no matter how small.

Thank You!

Cashdan's Coin Comments

Eliot J. Cashdan

THE coin business is quite a funny business. One would think that the coin business was on quite an even keel and that the antics of a few coin dealers could not affect the whole coin market, but just the opposite seems to be true.

Of course the legitimate coin dealers that have been in the business for years usually disregard the antics of the few dealers who try to create their own trends and markets. However, big coin business is fairly new, and there are many 'Johnny-come-latelies' in the business, and right now, a lot of them are running 'scared'.

When they notice on the various teletype circuits that certain of the larger dealers are unloading certain items at low prices, they immediately figure that the world is coming to an end, and they in turn figure that they better unload too because they figure that the other dealer knows some certain something that they do not.

The smaller dealers also can not afford to wait for the market to adjust itself — as it always has. There have been many charges and counter charges during the past couple of weeks about 'rigging' and various other practices. It seems that a few of the dealers in the country sold 1964 proof sets short early in the year figuring that with a record production of approximately four million sets they would have no trouble delivering the sets that they sold short and making a nice profit on the transaction.

Nobody could possibly foresee the announcement by the Treasury officials that there would be no proof sets manufactured in 1965 because of the so called coin shortage. When this news came out, as everyone knows, the price of the 1964 proof set skyrocketed. The reason for the high prices on 1964 proof sets in spite of the record production is that if the Treasury never resumes the manufacture of proof sets again, the 1964 proof set will be the only year to include the proof Kennedy half dollar.

As far as the other coins in the 1964 proof set are concerned, we do not see much future in them at all. One can imagine that the dealers who had sold quantities of 1964 sets short for fall delivery got pretty sick when they heard the news and saw the increase in prices on the 1964 sets.

These sets have been footballed around during the past few months something awful. Within a couple of weeks after the Treasury Departments announcement, the sets were as high as $22.00. Being that the price got up this high, most individuals who had ordered sets from the Mint could hardly wait until their sets were delivered so that they could hurry down to their local dealer and sell them at a tremendous profit. All of these sets being thrown on the market by private individuals as fast as they were being delivered by the Mint did depress the price quite a bit.

The price on the 1964 sets changes daily, and it is actually hard to say what a set is worth today. Some dealers have been accused of dumping large quantities of sets on the market in order to drive the prices down lower so that they could then go back in and buy the sets that they needed to fill their 'shorts' without taking too much of a bath. Lately we have seen the prices vary as much as $2.00 in one day from morning until evening. Some people are of the opinion that the 1964 proof set will compare in value to the 1960 small date proof set within the next six months. Others are of the opinion that the millions of coin collectors in the United States will not be ignored and that within the next couple of years the Treasury Department will relent and start manufacturing proof sets again.

Now if this happens, we expect the 1964 sets to drop sharply the moment the announcement of resumption of proof set manufacturing is made. An interesting sidelight on the 1964 proof set which makes it unique in one respect is that it is the only proof set in existence that

Cashdan

has a President of the United States on each one of the coins. We hardly think that this fact has any bearing on the price trend of the set though.

The coin market has often been compared to the stock market, but the greatest similarity that we notice is that when the stock market runs 'scared' prices tumble, people sell without even knowing why they are selling — they just want to 'get out' before prices go any lower.

Naturally when a rash of selling like this occurs, prices tumble even lower.

This seems to be exactly what is happening in the coin market today, but the smart investors are picking their spots and doing a lot of buying at real bargain prices. The situation that exists now is quite similar to the situation that existed in the fall of 1960. At that time also a few of the larger dealers started unloading coins in wholesale quantities. All of the 'sheep' began to follow in the unloading process, and the prices were quite depressed on many items.

As a matter of fact, uncirculated rolls of 1950-D nickels which had reached a high of $225.00 per roll during the summer of 1960 soon dropped to

FREE WITH 1 YEAR SUBSCRIPTION.

$130.00 per roll because of the rash of selling and the rumors circulating around that the coin business was finished and all coin collectors were leaving the hobby because prices were too high. Some of the same sort of rot is circulating around now, and many collectors and investors are foolishly unloading their holdings.

Of course when you stop to think about these coins that are being unloaded all over the country you must realize that in order to unload something you still have to have a buyer. If there are buyers around waiting to buy coins at depressed prices we wonder why the seller doesn't figure that out too. Evidently everybody does not think that the market will continue to fall and that the coin collectors and investors are all dying off or leaving the fold for greener pastures.

It is against all laws of economics that coins should continually be on the rise and never have a period of regression. This is perfectly normal in a country of free enterprise and anyone who has studied the history of coin prices over the years will note that every coin that has ever regressed has always started to advance again. In over 95% of the cases the coin has advanced past the previous high to set a new high for itself.

We are not trying to act as judge and jury during the present situation, but rather we are trying to report the facts as we see them to the best of our ability to enlighten the newcomers who have not been through a period like this before. Perhaps being in the coin business ourselves our views are a trifle distorted at times, but always call the shots the way we see them. We also try to practice what we preach, and we have been doing very little selling lately ourselves. We have been buying wisely—or at least we think we have—and we are content to sit and wait for a while for the prices to go up again as they eventually must.

We refuse to speculate in proof sets ourselves, but we do buy and sell them for customers. Perhaps we are wrong, but we don't have over two dozen of any date proof set in stock at the moment. We feel that we can always buy all that we need over the teletype so what's the use of carrying highly speculative items in stock in quantity. We might not make a big killing, but, on the other hand, we certainly will not take a big loss.

FACTS YOU SHOULD KNOW!

Regarding the 1964 Pointed and Blunt tail 9 Dimes

The Pointed tail 9 is rare, the Blunt tail 9 is common, this is our opinion from a lengthy detailed research. There are less than 2,000,000 Pointed tail 9 1964-P dimes, with over 300,000,000 Blunt tail 9's with the balance of this year and next year this could mean up to 1,000,000,000 yes, one billion, Blunt tail 9 dimes of 1964-P will be available. When you consider the ratio 2,000,000 and 1,000,000,000 you have a rare item.

The 1964-D Pointed tail 9 isn't as rare but only some 47,000,000 are out in comparison to up to 2,000,000,000, yes two billion Blunt tail 9's. The U.S. Mint is out to flood the market! And they will. But the more they make the more rare the Pointed tail 9 dime will be!

The pattern is the same as the 1960 small date cents. They were struck the early part of the year, thereafter all large dates; so be it hereafter all Blunt tail 9 dimes.

The 1964 Proof sets have the same variety, again the Pointed tail 9 is in a strict minority, only 35,000 similar to the 1960 small date proof set mintage. Over 3,000,000 1964 proof sets will be made, thus 2,965,000 will be of the Blunt type!

We have a limited supply of this promising dime variety.

$120,000 ESTATE LIQUIDATION SALE

One of our good customers recently passed away and we have been retained by his heirs to liquidate his holdings. The first portion will mainly be SILVER DOLLARS. These MUST be SOLD within 30 DAYS so quick sale rather than high prices will rule the sale. The BAR-GAINS can be bought on our easy payment plan -- 20% down.

Space City Averages:

How They Are Obtained

With close to 1,500 separate statistics appearing each week in PACE, a need exists to express this information in graphic form for busy readers.

We are currently charting eight different coin series each week as you see below. These charts are based on Space City Averages, an arbitrarily chosen group of rolls which we feel are representative of the total for that series.

To be included in the Space City Averages rolls are chosen on the basis of three factors: (1) their trading is constant, (2) they are widely held, and (3) they are indicative of the series.

It is obvious infrequently traded items, closely held items, and extremes in the series would not serve this purpose.

Each week the statistical staff of PACE prepares these averages from the information obtained on The American Numismatics Exchange transactions.

The amount expressed in the Space City averages is the total market bid prices for the rolls included in the averages. This is a dollar figure and is compared with previous week, month, and year figures for analysis. The high and low for 1964 is also shown.

MARKET SUMMARY

DECEMBER 2, 1964

By Russell Brown

FRANKLIN half dollars were up this week in fairly heavy trading, and Washington quarters along with proof sets put a stop to their downward trends but the rest of the market continued its general decline.

Boasting a better than even break of advances over declines, several of the key Franklin dates scored solid advances this week. The 1949-P, 1949-D and 1950-P all rose ten dollars per roll. But the declines, though only one half the order of magnitude of the gains, gave the half dollar series a generally mixed appearance.

Washington quarters were unchanged with all price changes in very small amounts. Only the 1943-S with a gain of two dollars and the 1941-D with a loss of $5 moved appreciably. Many offers to sell the 1955-D were noted but there were few decreases in price.

Proof sets followed their trend of last week and appeared to have reached the bottom of their decline. The 1951 set lost its gain of the previous week and the 1964 set moved over a very narrow trading range. An attempt to drive the price of the 1964 set downward which was initiated last week met with failure.

Peace dollars were also mixed in quiet trading though some rather large price movements were noted. In fact, with the exception of the 1924-P, every change in price was a $10 to $20 or more. Most of these issues are so scarce that the slightest movement in the market causes wild gyrations in the quoted values. The market is so thin in places that requests for several of the key rolls can double prices overnight.

Morgan dollars continued their general decline with only one minute advance recorded. Three issues, the 1885-S, 1892-O, and the 1891-S all lost $20 or more. Three other issues dropped $10 each.

Cents, nickels and dimes continue to resemble a disaster area. This week there were seven advances the largest of which was four dollars, against 66 declines, fifteen of which were five dollars or more. In the Lincolns, the late thirties were hit again as the offers to sell go lower and lower seeking a buyer. The small dates are only being purchased for store stock at this time and some of the bids on these keys, though they seem ridiculous are the only bids to be found in the series.

Jeffersons are unwanted seemingly wanted only by a very few investors at this time. As a matter of fact, our monitors picked up only less than forty non-repetitive bids on the series during the entirety of the week. Against this was a vast wash of sell offers at prices which continue to creep lower.

Mercury and Roosevelt dimes after an apparent pull out from the doldrums, sank again with 23 declines against only 4 advances. Few offers to buy the Mercuries are noted at this time and in the Rosys, only the 1955 issues are getting any play. Bids were noted for the '55 Philly in the high nineties and several rolls were traded at these prices. Some slight interest in the '55-S was shown in the early part of the week but the price settled fast after the transactions were completed.

The Market Opinion

It appears that we have reached the point in time at which the intermediate silver coinage is ready to move again. But this move will not take place unless the investors which were beyond counting a year ago return to the coin market. It is fairly certain that the rather shabby performance of the small denominations during the past year has scared off many of these buyers.

Unfortunately, the apathy of these investors runs over toward the purchase of the keys which will always be in demand. The investor, while selling his late dates, also dumps his keys and since there is such a very thin market for these coins and since it takes time for them to be assimilated, the prices naturally drop. This is what is happening now. The only question is just how long will it take for the coins in weak hands to be removed from the market place. For this supply will have to diminish before demand which is always present, can drive the prices of coins forward once again.

If you doubt this, look around you at the market for type coins and choice singles. It continues to boom with no sign of abatement.

American Numismatics Exchange Transactions

BU Roll Prices as of Wednesday, Dec. 2, 1964

These bid and asked prices, from the American Numismatic Exchange Inc., do not necessarily represent actual transactions. They are a guide to the range within which these coins could have been sold (indicated by the "bid") or bought (indicated by the "asked") at the time of compilation. Price changes are obtained by comparison of weekly bid prices.

Prices are wholesale quotations compiled from the American Numismatic Exchange teletype system which serves 195 coin dealers across the country.

"PREFERRED" MINT SETS U.S. TREASURY SEALED

Notice that there are fewer Mint Sets sold by the U.S. Mint than Proof Sets. These sets are in the original polyethylene packets as purchased from the U.S. Mint. THEY HAVE BEEN PACKED LIKE THIS ONLY SINCE 1959. They contain one of each coin from the Philadelphia and Denver Mints, a total of ten coins in each set.
